

Amanda A. Bradley

Position:	Partner
Practice Group:	Commercial Litigation / Eminent Domain and Land Use
Education:	Cumberland School of Law of Samford University, J.D., 1997 Auburn University, B.A., 1994
Bar Admissions:	Colorado, Alabama

Amanda Bradley joined Hale Westfall in 2000; her practice is focused on eminent domain and real estate litigation and transactions. She has represented clients in eminent domain actions involving various municipal and county governments and urban renewal authorities throughout Colorado, and counsels clients from preliminary negotiations through the litigation and appellate procedures. Ms. Bradley also has considerable experience in other aspects of real estate dealings and land use disputes including those concerning title issues, lease and purchase agreements, and other complex contractual disputes.

Ms. Bradley graduated from Auburn University in 1994 with a degree in criminal justice/pre-law, and received her J.D. from Cumberland School of Law at Samford University in 1997. She is a member of the Alabama, Colorado and Denver Bar Associations.